

I am writing to comment on the issue of allowing cell phone usage on board airplanes at any time is incomprehensible. Not only is it going to allow terrorist the opportunity to communicate to each other but it is also a nuisance since everybody will be wanting to speak to their friends and family while other passengers are trying to get some sleep time. When will this nonsense ends??? How do you propose a flight attendant to tell someone who has a 'right' that they are not allowed to talk to another person through the cell phone if the law is being passed??? Just imagine yourself sitting next next to someone who is constantly on the phone with someone else...
